Hutchison's Bargain Store,

The large quantities of goods received the past two weeks here would cause an observant person to wonder how a business that is growing and improving from year to year so rapidly can continue to find new fields for distribution. Low prices, great values and big bargains are phrases that are used so much by stores that get high prices, they have almost ceased to have any influence to draw trade, but when a house backs up all their promises and gives their customers the actual values, the field for increase is almost unlimited. We might call this our

THINGS SEEN IN GOTHAM

Owen Langdon Tells of Interesting Characters and Events.

The Dead Queen of Chinatown.

Ella Anderson was buried in Calvary cemetery the other day. Politicians, policemen, women of the town, bar tenders and sports subscribed according to their means to buy a coffin and a grave for one whose life was a tragedy.

Eight years ago Ella Anderson ran away from a good home in Brooklyn soon after she turned up in Chinatown; before long she was a victim of the opium habit, that never lets go of its victims; of late years she has been known as the "white queen of Chinatown." She could not have been much more than 25 years old when she died.

The queen's life was not unlike that of many other girls in the Chinese quarter; what was remarkable about her was her beauty, her air of refinement, the lingering traces in her of what had been the manner of a cultured family. Most of the white women of Pell, Mott, Doyers and adjoining streets are of course of the lowest and most ignorant type, and among such women Miss Anderson shone by force of contrast. She never lacked money. The Chinese are a thrifty race, and they never abuse the women who share their lives, nor do they begrudge them money. But—

The old home of the Andersons—not their present place, I believe—was on Gates avenue. Chinatown is not far from the New York end of the bridge, the starting point of nearly all the trolley car lines of Brooklyn. One of these, after traveling some miles of business streets, goes to Gates avenue. Sometimes there used to come from the direction of the slums, closely veiled and walking with the slow tread of illness, a woman, young and slender, but already bowed. She would get upon a Gates avenue car and sit unmoved while it went on its devious way until the avenue was reached. Then there would be a moment when the car flew past the door of a house in the middle of a long block, pretty well up town, when the veiled woman would look up from her brooding thoughts, and gaze at the place as it flashed past. No one she knew or loved lived there; but it was the only link that bound her to the past.

The woman grew thinner and more feeble; then the men about the cars noticed that she did not come any more. Then death claimed her, and that was the end, so far as this world knows.

The Games Abroad.

One queer feature about the coming games of the college men abroad is that the Yale and Harvard teams that are to try conclusions with Oxford and Cambridge do not include the best American college athletes.

Everybody knows that in the recent intercollegiate meet the University of Pennsylvania won nine out of 11 events, while the Yale and Harvard teams could only carry off two. Of course Yale and Harvard claim that the reason of this is "professionalism." Probably this may be so, but why do the strict amateurs from the New England coast consent to meet the very best men from inland at all? A better reason is given in the current gossip: "Penn" has the services of the best trainer in the country; and Yale had that trainer once, and let him go. Mike Murphy is certainly a wonder in developing men.

The Yale and Harvard men ought to win on "form" in five contests out of nine, but that is too close for comfort, when all the accidents of travel and change of climate are considered. The team has no one who can contest the long jump with the Britons. Kraenzle, of Pennsylvania, is more than the peer of the best men on either team. To see this youth take a brisk run, leap into the air and come cleanly, sharply down at the other side of a distance of about 24 feet is to see one of the finest sights in athletics. He seems to be in the air a long time and to choose where he will come down like a bird.

But three men can compete on each side in each event. The make-up of both teams is now practically complete, and there is nothing to do but "root" for the victory of the Americans on July 22.

A Club for Women Lawyers.

New York is not the first city to have a club of women lawyers, Boston's Portia club being, so far as I know, the first in the country; but with a membership of 40 the new club starts out rather well.

Women lawyers do not seem to make much headway in New York. Miss Rosalie Loew, the very bright young woman who was chosen president of the new club, has a fair practice, but most of the other members are practically unknown in the courts. Many women have taken law courses so as to better fit themselves for the management of their own property.

It would be unfair to class these as "successful lawyers." I have no doubt that there are in other parts of the country at least 20 women who make better incomes at the bar than do any of the New York sisterhood.

It is quite the other way about in medicine; there the women are not only very numerous, but they have in many instances handsome incomes from their practice.

The truth is that New York, like most very large cities, is extremely conservative. It does not care a button about the "extension of woman's sphere." Any movement of "advanced" women will in this city lag behind others of half the size. What New York really cares about is society. It is more interested just now in the suit brought by the Colonial Dames of America against the Colonial Dames of New York for the use of the title than in a dozen women lawyers' clubs.

Of course the New York dames have a poor case; if the title is of any use to anybody it ought to be national; but New Yorkers are easy to lead into a new outside organization. It is remembered that even Lavinia Dampsey, that queer creature who called herself "Queen of the Holland Dames" and invested herself with a tawdry crown at a public hotel, succeeded in inducing then Mayor Strong to attend the strangely tasteless performance.

Another Letter Wedding.

New York is interested, too, in the reports that Daisy Letter is to make in England an even more brilliant match than did her sister, Lady Curzon. Gossip says she is practically certain to become the countess of Suffolk and Berkshire. This will give her the precedence over her elder sister, even though the latter may be a "viceroy."

There is no doubt of it; Americans are in fashion in London now. And there is every prospect that Anglo-American marriages will be as frequent in the future as in the past. There is at least this advantage in marrying a British nobleman: His wife takes without question his own name, whatever age. Many a rich American girl has married a continental nobleman, only to find herself subjected to all manner of slights and insults, as being made of inferior clay. Indeed, that hideous continental arrangement, the "morganatic marriage," has made more than one Yankee girl take a place but little better than that of a mistress in the eyes of foreign law and custom.

It is only a few days since the very beautiful daughter of a many-times millionaire of New Jersey married a German prince in New York, though her family was fully warned that she could never be considered in her husband's country his equal—not being "highly bred," and that his family would not and could not legally recognize her as a princess. Why American girls should pay millions for titles which they cannot wear, merely to subject themselves to insult and placed themselves in the position of half-and-half wives, is beyond comprehension. In England there are no such complications. The men who sell titles, with themselves thrown in, can at least legally deliver the goods.

The Problem of Roosevelt.

The growing popularity of Theodore Roosevelt is puzzling the politicians since the return of the rough rider from the west. People are wondering whether the young man can be made a candidate for the presidency in 1904. Some are even suggesting an earlier date.

When Benjamin Franklin went to Paris for the American colonies, it is said that he fooled all the diplomats by simply telling the truth; Roosevelt fooled all the politicians—who are perpetually conjuring up reasons for things—by acting his own self. He has no pretense. When he gets with a lot of men that he likes—and he did at the recent reunion of his regiment—he lets himself go, and says and does whatever comes into his head. He is not a actor; dignified enough on ordinary occasions, at such a time he is like a boy, and his prominent teeth are displayed in a constant grin.

Roosevelt is very sensitive about his teeth, which are, after all, not unusually prominent. He is all sensitiveness. He is nervous, restless, perpetually active. He does not know how to rest. He has never had the need to try. His digestion is perfect. He does not know or care what he eats. He was one of the few men in the American army who were not at all ill during the Santiago campaign. He is the embodiment of energy; he cannot sit still. If he is not writing or dictating letters, he will walk up and down the room, even if talking with a friend. By all the rules which the doctors lay down, such a fellow ought to be a candidate for a cure for nervous prostration; but he persists in being in excellent health.
